The Judicial Conventions.

The Delegates of both parties from our City to course, entire good feeling and the most free and friendly intercourse between them will be maintained throughout. It is generally believed that the Whig Convention will probably propose the formation of a Union Ticket composed of two memhers of each party, but the acquiescence of the Loco Foco Convention is considered very doubtful.

We shall not at all regret to see the proposition to unite on one ticket declined if made. Heartily as we trust that the People will overlook Party considerations when confronted by those of superior capacity and probity, we cannot say we like the look of a Union Ticket. By ensuring the election of the candidates thus nominated, it would immensely increase the danger of corrupt and unsuitable nominations. The corruptions and tyranny of Party are usually greatest where one party is omnipotent, and naturally least where two parties, nearly balanced, are ardently pitted against each Whenever the rival parties shall fall into the habit of holding simultaneous conventions and openly dividing 'the Spoils' before each Election. then look out for Political corruption and degeneracy such as this Country has never yet experi-

We trust, therefore, that each Convention will the People will, on the 7th of June, elect the best four out of the eight, no matter whether of one party or the other. Let each voter resolve that his vote shall be cast for the four he esteems best fitted for this most responsible duty, in utter contempt of Party. Of course, each voter will be apt to support the men nominated from his own side if he does not know or believe that one or more better candidates than the poorest on his ticket are presented on the other; in which case, he ought unhesitatingly to vote for the best men. Admit that only a small proportion will be governed by such considerations, we trust that proportion, as parties stand, will suffice to give us a better Judiciary than would be selected by either party possessing undisputed as-

Col. Polk to Col. Webb.

Mu Dear Colonel : On a streak of Morse's lighting I have had the pleasure to receive your "leadwith the proper inquiry- What will Mr. Polk say to all this ?"-Really, my dear Col. I am transported with joy at seeing one of your Military experience, and Whig Editorial Authority thus play into my right hand! At one stride, you have bold ly landed on the ground to which I had been cau tiously feeling my way. Never was help more opportune. You shall find that my pliant organist will not be slow in following your gallant lead.-What more could I'desire? The Country was growing faint and weary, with the sight of human blood, and the prospect of entailing an enormous debt on posterity; but now we have good, excellent Whig advice, that goes even beyond our most sanguine hopes of plunder and dominion. Take possession of the whole of Mexico—maintain an army sufficient to keep her in subjection, say a standing army of at least 30,000, at the distance of 2,000 miles, until the barbarians form a Government which we publish on the outside of this posterity; but now we have good, excellent Whig | Pleas are re-nominated by a clique of lawyers! as a Military conquest, until the People shall do exactly what we tell them is best for them!- Why, Colonel! you shall be my first Military Satrapyou shall have something better than a Brigadierthing, all ideas of that sort have grown musty in this the Whice have been weak enough to invest me; but I was becoming impatient. You have cut the Gordian knot of all my difficulties. I shall never ask of progress more than you have suggestedshall I ever need higher authority !—Ah, my dear shall I ever need higher authority !—Ah, my dear vince the public of its value.

The difference between Phonography and all systems have in all sincerity answered your question-What will Mr. Polk say to all this ?

Your delighted and gratified P. S. I wish you could beat Gales's old fashioned notions about Honesty and Public Virtue out of his head-I verily believe that he does not know that Madison is dead and buried.

OUR CITY Jupges .- One of the great merits of the new mode of electing Judges is the public scrutiny to which it necessarily subjects the characters of those who suffer themselves to be presented for Judicial stations. Hitherto a Judge would be ap pointed before one in a hundred of the people of the district had over heard that a vacancy existed -Henceforth every man may know, and most men mast, that an Election is about to take place and who are the candidates; and if men of doubtful integrity are elevated to the Bench, it will be the direct fault of the Peo ple, whose interest and safety imperatively demand an

We understand that the character of one prominent candidate for Judge of Common Pleas will be challenged and scrutinized by a respectable citizen, who al leges that he has been stripped of his property through the expectant Judge's dishonesty in private transactions. Judicial Nominations.

When the first meeting of the Bar was held last Fall, under the pretence of assisting the Legislature in the reorganization of our City Courts, a Committee of 13 was appointed not by Mr. Wood, the Chairman, but a written list was handed up to him prepared by somebody, at the head of which was John Duer. Here was the first step of a clique favorable continuing most of the present Judges, and selecting the residue from men of the same stamp.

Mr. Hastings met them on the threshold, and plainly declared in the meeting that the only important matter to be considered was, whether the Lawyers would bandy themselves together to oppose the Legal Retheir exclusiveness, coalesce with the popular masses as count of the twelve months' volunteers declining to rethe Judicial State Conventions at Syracuse left citizens, and in good faith lend their influence in comlast evening in the Isaac Newton for Albany. Mr. O'Conor, from this Committee, reported a proposed bill, making careful provi- cts, and firm, sion for a great number of broken down politicians in the shape of judgeships at from $3,000 to $4,000 salary for each. The struggle which ensued will be remembered. After being once fairly voted down by a precon-certed rally of the friends of the clique, it was bastly smuggled through and hurried off to Albany, with powor to the Committee to after it as they pleased.

Mr. Hastings, and those who supported his views, poured a steady fire into their ranks with great execution. They got up a new series of meetings, set forth the designs of the scheming few, and attempted to at $7 874; Extra Eagle, $6, cash. And they succeeded in tiring out the patience of the Reformers, who could not afford to devote all their time to the matter, as they did not propose to provide any salaries or fees for themselves as a reward for their ex-

Mr. Hastings's resolutions predicted what has since happened, and urged early preparation for the issue, They alleged that there was a design to pass a bill late in the session superseding all the Judges of the Superior Court and Common Pleas, and ordering the election of the Judges within a few days after its passage, so as to give no time for apposition, and enable all the old Judges to be reslected, and some of the Committee of Thirteen to slip into the new places. They urged the danger of electing so many Judges at once, with no time for preparation and a great chance of corruption, and remended an immediate call of a Mass Meeting of citizens to take the matter in hand, and see that candidates should be nominated early enough to enable the public as those of Millard Fillmore, Joshua A. Spencer, to canvass their merits. The passage of those resolutions was staved off by rowdy opposition, and suffered Lord, Ambrose L. Jordon, Samuel Stevens, Mar. | to drop from an idea of many that nothing was to be apcus T. Reynolds, (Whigs,) Reuben H. Walworth, prehended, and that the fears of their friends were visionary. Now look at the result. Constitution.

Before Judge EDMONDS: In the matter of complaint against Heavy P. Wanmaker, late Public Administrator, for not delivering books and papers of office to his successor.

As the question argued and decided in this case s one raised under the new Constitution, and embraces in its range almost every officer appointed r elected since the first of January, 1847, we lay before our readers the points raised on the argument of David Dudley Field, Esq. the counsel for the complainant, and in full, the decision of Judge Ed-monds, whose prompt and clear exposition of the quesion. It is believed, will command general respect.

Mr. Figur discussed on Saturday the whole subject in a very able manner, arguing not only the question as to the repuguancy between the statute and the Constitution, but tracing into every locality and branch of the State Government the consequences of such a construc-tion as is sought to be given by the respondent in this tion as is sought to be given by the respondent in the case.

The propositions laid down by Mr. Field were briefly as follows, enforced by a variety of filustrations, and with great power of argument.

1. Mr. Wannaker's appointment as Fublic Administrator was not for any particular term, but during the pleasure of the Common Council of the City of New-York. The tenure of the office has not been changed. The Common Council therefore had the power to remove him, and having himself, in consequence of the removal, no farther right to the enstody of the books and papers of the office, he cannot be permitted to withhold them from any person appointed by the Common Council to receive them.

The appointment of a successor is therefore not neces-

June, passed on the last day of the Session, and on the very next day the Dietgates to the Tammany Convention to nominste Judges were elected! What a fine chance for the volce of the People to be heard!

And again: By the 10th section of the act "the fees to which the Justices or Judges of the said Courts are now entitled shall be received and paid by the Clerks of the said Courts into the treasury of the City," &c. So the old Fee system is to go on, and the Judges are to be the spents of the Clerks to collect the money!

And again: The Justices and Judges of the said Courts are to retain all their present powers, one of which is the appointment of a Clerk of the Superior Court with feet to his own use. So if Judge Oakley can be elected, Jesse can be kept in the full enjoyment of the prerogative of fee gathering, but probably Jesse Hoyr's bend to the U. States will be mose the sooner paid by Thomas or Jesse, no matter how much they receive them.

The appointment of a successor is therefore not becessarily involved in this section.

have already designated the Common Council as such authority, and the same instrument which gives them this power declares that their past action shall be and continue until altered by them.

It is a universal and unbending rule of construction that an instrument must be so construed that if possible all its parts will stand. The application of this rule, in this instrument must be so construed that if possible all its parts will stand. The application of the rule, in this instance, will enable both of these provisions of the Constitution to operate. An opposite construction would render nugstory, in a great measure, one of the provisions, and that not only in this case but in a vast number of cases of local organization and local government. Such ought never to be the determination unless rendered necessary by clear and inequivocal language, and least of all where it would have an inevitable tendency to resolve all government into its original circums.
